

Identifying Children with Disabilities Age Birth to 21

The State of Maryland, as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), affirmatively attempts to locate, identify, and evaluate all children with disabilities at no cost to families.

Infants and Toddlers Birth to 3

The process of locating, identifying, and evaluating infants and toddlers ages birth to 3 is the responsibility of the Infants and Toddlers program in each Maryland jurisdiction. Infants and toddlers with delays or disabilities may be eligible for early intervention services, which are designed to enhance a child's potential for growth and development and promote the ability of families to meet the special needs of their children.

Children and Students 3 to 21

The process of locating, identifying, and evaluating children and students ages 3 to 21 is the responsibility of the local school system in each Maryland jurisdiction. Children with disabilities in this age range may be eligible for special education and related services, (for example, speech therapy, physical therapy, or occupational therapy).

Referring a Child For Screening and Evaluation

Anyone who suspects that a child may have a developmental delay or a disability should refer that child to determine eligibility to receive early intervention or special education and related services (for example, speech, physical or occupational therapies).

Referrals for screening and evaluation may be made for any child presently living in Maryland, regardless of whether the child attends a public or private school, is educated at home, is homeless, a migrant, or a ward of the state. Even children who receive passing grades and who are advancing from grade to grade in school may be eligible for services.

If you suspect a child may have a delay or disability, call us!

Call the appropriate referral number for the child's age and the jurisdiction in which the child lives. (Referral numbers are listed on the opposite page.)
